

Saudi Water Forum Returns for its Third Edition in Riyadh

Riyadh is set to host the third edition of the Saudi Water Forum from April 29th to May 1st at the Riyadh Hilton Hotel, under the patronage of His Excellency the Minister of Environment, Water, and Agriculture, with the aim of enhancing water sector security and achieving sustainability.

Organized by the Ministry of Environment, Water, and Agriculture, the forum will serve as a crucial platform for exchanging experiences and knowledge, emphasizing the importance of water and its conditions in the Kingdom and globally. It will facilitate communication and interaction among government, private, and academic sectors to identify needs, refine policies, and ensure sufficient quantities of high-quality water for future generations.

The forum's themes will encompass various topics related to water resources management in alignment with the Kingdom's Vision 2030, addressing challenges, proposing innovative solutions, and discussing technology, innovation, and international best practices in water management and sustainability. Additionally, an accompanying exhibition will feature leading technology, consulting, and contracting companies, showcasing modern tools and technologies, including advancements in water research and the application of artificial intelligence.

Anticipated to draw a significant attendance of leaders and experts in the water sector locally, regionally, and internationally, the forum will provide valuable opportunities for learning and expertise exchange.
